

Ross Parker bio

Ross Parker is a resident of the City of Staunton and has lived in the city for over 25 years of his life. He attended James Madison University where he majored in English Language Studies.

Professionally, Ross runs the Information Governance and Data Privacy office at S&P Global, managing the data compliance framework for 36,000 employees. He oversees a multimillion-dollar budget and advises senior-level executives on matters relating to regulatory compliance, legislative developments, and policy making. Ross guides S&P's public policy department on matters relating to global privacy regulations/laws and has lobbied the senate finance committee on drafting considerations for proposed federal, data privacy legislation.

In this role as Chair for the VCSB Board, Ross assists the community by supporting the organization's mission to provide community based mental health, intellectual disability and substance abuse services to the citizens served by the organization.