

Tracy Henke has had the privilege to do nonprofit work for 20 years, most notably involving healthcare programs and policy, and improving rural mental and behavioral health resources. She currently owns Miracle Maxim Consulting firm, which contributes a portion of every contract to nonprofits benefiting children with serious illness. She is a member of the Waynesboro-Augusta Rotary, serves as Secretary for Waynesboro Public Schools' Special Education Advocacy Council (SEAC) and is the upcoming Chair of Waynesboro's Disability and Aging Board for Independence (DABI).

Originally from west Tennessee, Tracy's upbringing instilled the value of relationships, the strength of communities, the joy of working with one's hands and getting dirty and the serenity that hard but meaningful work can bring. Henke lives in Waynesboro with her husband Justin, oldest son Eli, youngest son Maxim, mother Cindy, 2 dogs, 2 cats, & about 10,000 houseplants. When not working, she loves traveling, hanging out in Cape May, NJ, cross-stitching, watching documentaries, cooking, & pretty much any adventure with her family.
